Explorer and Five Men Reach Falklands After 36 Days
in Small Boat.

(By Cable to The World.)
Copyright, 1916, by The Press Publishing Co. (The New York World.)

PORT STANLEY, Falkland Islands, South Atlantic, May 31.—Have arrived here. The Endurance was crushed in middle of Weddell Sea on Oct. 27, 1915. Drifted 700 miles in ice until April 9, this year.

We landed on Elephant Island April 16. I left on April 24, leaving twenty-two men in hole in ice cliffs there, and proceeded for help toward South Georgia with five men in twenty-two foot boat.

At time of leaving island all were well, but in urgent need of rescue.
SHACKLETON.

Fears for the safety of Sir Ernest Shackleton, lost for months to civilization behind the ice barrier of the Antarctic, are set at rest by the above message.

Shackleton failed in his daring attempt to cross the Antarctic Continent and the pole itself.
No word of the British explorer had reached the outside world since March 25, when the news came of the disaster to his relief ship, the Aurora, which had been depended on to pick up his party at Ross Sea. The Aurora was driven from her moorings at Cape Evans and carried a thousand miles in the ice.

Shackleton and his men, apparently, never started on their trans-continental land journey, but wintered in Weddell Sea, only to have their ship, the Endurance, crushed in the ice and carried away, bearing them further and further from their quest until they took refuge on Elephant Island, one of the South Shetland group on the fringe of the Antarctic region. All the islands of this chain are barren and mountainous, with no vegetation, except mosses and lichens.

Then came the briefly chronicled voyage of six men in a 22-foot boat. It took eight days for Sir Ernest, after he had his men ashore, to prepare for his desperate boat voyage. On April 24, with the days already growing shorter down there on the Antarctic Circle and darkness and the ice closing in, he and his five men set out.

Shackleton headed for South Georgia, 850 miles northeast, where he had a base and where he could get in communication by wireless with the outside world and report the plight of his men.

For thirty-seven days these six men navigated their small craft. Somewhere on the voyage Sir Ernest discovered that gales or the circum-polar current, or both, were sweeping him westward and he made for the Falklands, 700 miles by the most direct route from Elephant Island. As Sir Ernest set out at first for South Georgia he must have sailed 1,000 miles. The wonder is that the boat was able to survive.

The last word received from him, until last night, came to The World in February, 1915, in a message sent by wireless from the desolate island of South Georgia, which he had as- sected as his advanced base. It said: "You must not look for us until about the beginning of March, 1916, and then from New Zealand."

At the time that message was sent Shackleton was a year behind his schedule, owing to the unexampled lateness of the season and bad weather conditions. When he sailed from Liverpool, Sept. 12, 1914, to join the Endurance at Buenos Ayres, Oct. 26, of that same year, he had hoped to land on the shores of Weddell Sea that same season (spring in the Antarctic) and to start on his journey as soon as he could get what he needed ashore.

GARBAGE WAR MOVING FROM TRENCHES TO COURT

Claimant for Ownership of Site Charged with Committing a Nuisance in Trying to Sink Scow.

The scene of action in the Staten Island garbage war was transferred this morning from the trenches to the Stapleton Court, where Edward P. Doyle who claims ownership of the islands sought as sites for the garbage plant, was arraigned before Magistrate Handy on a charge of committing a nuisance. He is alleged to have been the backer of an expedition which tried to sink an old scow in the waters near Simonsen Island, so that material for building the garbage could not be brought in.

Capt. Worthington, of the tugboat Hall, and seven of Doyle's employees were also charged with the offense, but the seven were discharged at the recommendation of District Attorney Keith. Capt. Worthington was held in $100 bail as a material witness against Doyle who, through his counsel, William M. Bennett, waived examination and was held for Sir William Stirling Doyle was represented by William Travers Jerome.

"I thought I was to be held for the Grand Jury when I waived," Doyle said after the court proceedings, "and you can bet I am not going to let my case be tried by three justices appointed by Mayor Mitchell."

TELL OF ALLEGED GIFTS BY MRS. DENNIS TO INNES

ATLANTA, Ga., June 1.—That about $2,000 had been sent to Victor Innes by Mrs. Elsie Selma Dennis during the latter part of 1913 and the early part of 1914 was testified to by the State's witnesses to-day at the trial of Victor Innes for larceny after trust. Mrs. Selma, mother of the missing girl, testified that Innes had often promised to marry Mrs. Dennis, but had always put off the ceremony.

POLICE FIND 167 STREETS AVAILABLE FOR PLAYGROUNDS

May Be Closed During Certain Hours, Following Suggestion of Evening World.

Police Commissioner Woods learned to-day from Chief Inspector Schmitt-berger, as a result of an investigation made at the suggestion of The Evening World, that there were 167 streets available for closing during certain hours of the day throughout the summer as playgrounds for children. The Commissioner said to-day he believed the decrease of highway accidents among children last summer was al- together due to the playgrounds in the streets established according to The Evening World's plan.

So far as the law permits, the Com- missioner said, he will establish street playgrounds under police supervision as soon as attendants are provided. Sixteen attendants have volunteered this year, as against thirty last year.

MISERABLE FROM STOMACH TROUBLE

Felt Wretched Until He Started
To Take "Fruit-a-tives"

594 Champlain St., Montreal.
For two years I was a miserable sufferer from Rheumatism and Stomach Trouble. I had frequent Dizzy Spells, and when I took food felt wretched and sleep. I suffered from Rheumatism dreadfully, with pains in my back and joints, and my hands swollen. A friend advised "Fruit-a-tives" and from the outset they did me good. After the first box I felt I was getting well and I can truthfully say that "Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine that helped me. LOUIS LABRIE.

SISTER'S BEAU HAS REVENGE.

Young Brother Who "Borrowed" Swain's Motorcycle Arrested.
While sister's beau chatted in the parlor of the Den-Bleyke home in Arcola, N. J., her younger brother, Jacob, 15, was joy riding through Paterson. He had found the beau's motorcycle standing at the curb.
The ride ended in Paterson, though,
for Jacob was arrested. Sgt. Perry, thinking of the five-mile walk in store for the swain, had the cycle returned before he had finished his act.
Jacob, who was held for driving without a license, was freed under a suspended sentence by Recorder Young yesterday.
